Join us for an engaging and insightful event focused on Positive Secure Cultures and Personal Resilience, hosted by our NCSC Crown Dependency representative we are bringing together professionals working in cyber security to explore how fostering a strong security culture goes hand-in-hand with individual wellbeing and resilience.

The session will highlight the importance of creating environments where resilience is seen as a shared responsibility, supported by open communication, trust, and positive reinforcement rather than fear or blame. Alongside this, we will examine the role of personal resilience—equipping individuals with the tools to manage stress, adapt to change, and maintain a proactive mindset in the face of growing cyber and workplace challenges. The event reinforces that cultivating both secure behaviours and personal strength is essential for building a truly resilient and security-conscious organisation.

This event is aimed at Cyber Security Practitioners
