

Celebrating our 2026 Productivity Pro Award winners

25th June 2026

We're proud to celebrate the outstanding winners of this year's Productivity Pro Awards announced at our conference on 24 June, recognising businesses and individuals who are making meaningful improvements to how we work in Jersey.

A huge congratulations to:

Vanessa Walmsley, Layzell & Co – Why Didn't We Do This Sooner? Award

Through a transformation in how the team works together, they've introduced clarity, reduced duplication and enabled smarter, more confident ways of working across the business.

Alan Le Quesne, Bellpumps & Drains – One Small Change, Big Difference Award

By simplifying a previously complex process, they've made work faster, easier and more efficient, saving time, improving quality and delivering better results for their customers.

Ana & Marcus Calvani, Jersey Hospitality Association – Collaboration That Delivered Award

Bringing together an entire sector, they've united businesses, government and partners to strengthen relationships and deliver real impact, from supporting local businesses to helping shape a more enabling environment for the industry to thrive.

Dror Danino-Forsyth, The Atlantic Hotel – Wellbeing That Works Award

Taking a thoughtful approach to flexibility and work-life balance, they've created a happier, more confident team, proving that when you look after your people, performance follows.

Team, Beresford Street Kitchen – Developing Talent That Sticks Award

With a strong focus on leadership, communication and wellbeing, they've created an environment where people can grow, build confidence and stay – strengthening both performance and retention.

These winners are fantastic examples of what productivity looks like in practice, whether that's through collaboration, innovation, or investing in people.

We'll be sharing more about each of our winners on social media soon, so keep an eye out to learn more about the impact they're making.
